District Courts

Helen C. McKinney and B. H. Lovett yesterday filed a suit to District Supreme Court against the Mutual Life Insurance Company of New York to recover the amount they allege is due on an insurance policy held by Charles A. McKinney, who died recently. Mrs. McKinney says Mr. Lovett holds an interest of $500 in the policy, and asserts that the deceased secured $221 from the defendants on his policy calling for $2,500. Attorney G. Gwynn Gardiner filed the petition.

The Fletcher Jewelry Company was incorporated yesterday to do a general merchandise business at 423 Ninth street northwest and 307 Pennsylvania avenue northwest. The capital stock is $10,000. The incorporators are Harry B. Fischer, Sarah Fischer and Ernest Lane.

Attorney Frank Steison yesterday filed a petition for letters of administration in the estate of George W. Gray upon behalf of the Misses Bertha and Edith C. Gray, daughters of the deceased, and the National Surety and Trust Company. Mr. Gray held realty valued at $14,549 and personal property worth $38,500.

Mrs. Laura Ethel Bryant yesterday sued Edgar V. Bryant for limited divorce and asked the District Supreme Court to enjoin him from interfering with her or their two children. Justice McCoy issued a rule, returnable April 2, citing the defendant to show cause why the injunction should not be granted. Attorneys William E. Murphy and Robert A. Proctor represent the wife.

The Price of Flat Work
Decreases in All Laundries

While inquiring prices of laundering flat work, the writer visited the Arcade Laundry, Fourteenth and Park roads and interviewed the proprietors, Messrs. W. F. Bergmann and L. O. Cook, and found they are fully justified in the step they have taken, as they both believe and live up to the old saying, "Live and Let Live." Consequently only the highest class of labor is employed and these work under the eight-hour law and are paid top-notch wages; this and the increased cost of supplies has recently forced the management to inaugurate a new rate for flat work, which meets with the approval of their patrons. It was also surprised to find the improved methods employed in all departments, everything designed and operated to minimize the wear of materials; some articles are ironed by hand, but a new machine for laundering shirts is operated by steam pressure, doing away entirely with the rubbing process. A similar process is used in the laundering of collars.

Recently a new flat-work ironer was installed which will not only improve the character of work turned out but will increase the capacity of the plant sufficiently to meet the demands of the increasing business, which has grown to such an extent that they are now employing many people in the plant. It requiring several automobiles and horse-drawn wagons to collect and deliver the work.

Another feature which attracted my attention was the special machinery recently installed for pressing Palm Beach suits, which class of work is one of the specialties of the laundry.

Formerly the office of the laundry was located in the works in the rear of the Arcade Building, but an office has been established in the front of the main building on 14th street for their patrons' convenience.—Adv.

PRACTICAL HEALTH TALKS

HEALTH AND THE CORSET.

No corset ever designed will injure the health if it is worn loose. To be sure, it may not then give one the fashionable figure, but what of that when compared with the havoc such compression of the great internal organs necessarily creates?

The pressure of the average corset is at the waist where the tissues are soft and yielding—here lie the stomach, liver, and pancreas, all vital organs and all intimately concerned with digestion. The appetites of women are, as a rule, capricious and the digestion indifferent, undoubtedly, very largely to the constant compression of these organs and the consequent impossibility of performing their functions properly. Nature is marvellously adaptable, and manages to sustain life through endless vicissitudes, as the work of these hampered organs amply testifies.

Frequently the liver, which is the largest gland in the body, and weighs several pounds, is pushed out of its position and forced down the abdomen until it reaches the pelvis. This pressure from above constantly exerted upon the special organs of women confined in the pelvis has a most deleterious effect upon them, retarding circulation, interfering with nervous impulses and even detaching the tissues from their moorings and in these ways giving rise to no end of so-called "female troubles."

While it is perfectly true that the corset worn in this manner hampers and greatly interferes with the functions of all organs it constricts, it is also perfectly true that some such garment has become a necessity with many women and can be made just as useful as abusive if it is correctly adjusted, with a view to aiding nature instead of shackling her; but nothing is more ridiculous than the sight of a heavy woman trussed in the restricting garment designed to give her a svelte form.

The object of a well-fitting corset is to sustain sagging tissues; to "gird the loins" in very truth; to support organs in danger of prolapse from relaxation, and, last, but by no means least, as a framework upon which to build the outer garments.

There are many who still believe that the shoulders should carry the weight of our clothing, but even men have awakened to the mischief that can be done the delicate tissue at the apex of the lung, which reaches well up to the collar bone, and the dragging, pulling and hauling of those structures by sus-

Answers to Queries.

Eugenie: The entire trouble with your hair springs from a poorly nourished scalp. Daily massage with deep, circular movements that will stir up the circulation is what you need mainly. Electrical treatment would also benefit you. The dry, brittle condition calls for oil. With your daily massage rub crude oil into the scalp. Brush vigorously with a clean, stiff brush every day.

Marian: What has just been told "Eugenie" applies to your first question. Regarding the second, I have so often said that I do not advocate the use of depilatories. However, there is not a mail but
